About MPV

Montreal Parental Village (MPV) is a non-profit organization based in Montreal, Quebec, dedicated to building strong, connected communities for parents and families across the city. We believe that no parent should feel isolated — raising children is a shared endeavour, and MPV exists to foster the village that every family deserves.

Through inclusive programs, peer support networks, and community events, MPV brings together parents from all walks of life — across cultures, languages, and family structures — to share resources, celebrate milestones, and support one another through the beautiful challenges of parenthood.

"It takes a village to raise a child — we are that village."

Mission & Vision

Our Mission	Our Vision
To create an inclusive, supportive community where all parents in Montreal can access peer connections, practical resources, and a sense of belonging throughout every stage of parenthood.	A Montreal where every family — regardless of background, language, or circumstance — feels supported, celebrated, and connected to a thriving parental village.

Our Core Values

- Warm & Welcoming — Every parent is met with warmth and without judgment, no matter where they are in their journey.
- Empowering — We equip families with the connections, knowledge, and confidence they need to thrive.
- Inclusive — We welcome all family configurations, cultures, languages, and backgrounds without exception.
- Community-First — We prioritize genuine human connection and collective support over individual transactions.

Our Programs

MPV offers a growing suite of programs designed to meet parents where they are — from pregnancy through the early school years and beyond.

Village Circles	Regular small-group gatherings where parents share experiences, challenges, and resources in a safe, moderated environment. Available in French and English.
New Parent Welcome	A dedicated onboarding program for new and expecting parents in Montreal, connecting them with peer mentors and local resources from day one.
Dads & Co-Parents Network	A community space for fathers, co-parents, and non-birthing parents to build support networks and find community.
Resource Hub	A curated bilingual directory of family services, mental health supports, childcare options, and community programs across Greater Montreal.
Community Events	Seasonal festivals, playgroups, workshops, and family-friendly events that bring the MPV community together in person throughout the year.
Peer Support Program	Trained community volunteers offer compassionate, non-clinical support to isolated or struggling parents across the city.

Community Voices

"MPV gave me a place to breathe. After moving to Montreal with a newborn and no family nearby, I was completely alone. Village Circles changed everything."

— Marie-Claire T., New Parent

"As a dad, I never expected to find a community like this. The co-parents network helped me become more confident in my role."

— James O., Father of two

Our Story

Montreal Parental Village was born from a simple observation: despite living in one of Canada's most vibrant cities, many parents felt profoundly alone. New arrivals, single parents, families navigating postpartum challenges — all shared the same quiet struggle: Who do I turn to?

MPV was founded to answer that question. Starting with small informal gatherings in community centres and parks, the organization quickly grew as word spread that this was a place without judgment — a place where all parents belonged.

Today, MPV operates city-wide programs in both French and English, partners with healthcare providers, social workers, and community organizations, and continues to expand its reach to the most isolated families in Montreal.

Year	Milestone
